To the referee:

The person named above is applying for a fellowship or scholarship to attend the Sewanee Writers' Conference. Fellowships (Walter E. Dakin, John N. Wall, or William Raulston) provide tuition, room, and board. Scholarships (Tennessee Williams, John N. Wall, Georges and Anne Borchardt, Susannah McCorkle, Peter Taylor, Howard Nemerov, Donald Justice, Mona Van Duyn, or Stanley Elkin) cover Conference tuition; the scholar is responsible for room and board. We require that fellowship applicants in fiction and poetry have a book published or in press at a major university or commercial publisher, and that scholarship applicants have a number of genre-specific publications in major academic or popular magazines. Playwright applicants should have work that has seen amateur or professional production. Fellows give short scheduled readings. Fellows and scholars aid the work of the Conference but do not have specified duties; instead, we ask that they actively support faculty leaders and their assigned workshop, and that they make themselves available to participants seeking additional instruction or response to their work. In your letter, please consider whether the applicant is likely to benefit from such a program and whether the applicant has the personal qualities that will enable him or her to assist others and so contribute to the work of the Conference. We are grateful for your assistance.
